

Why I R

Jessica Lee

University of New South Wales

20th June 2018

UNSW
SYDNEY

Why I R: What I wanted to say...

- Expand my statistical repertoire

Why I R: What I wanted to say...

- Expand my statistical repertoire
- Make my results reproducible

Why I R: What I wanted to say...

- Expand my statistical repertoire
- Make my results reproducible
- Improve my programming skills

Why I R:

1. I'm lazy

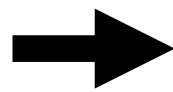

Why I R:

1. I'm lazy

DATA

Preprocessing/
Descriptives

Figures

Analysis

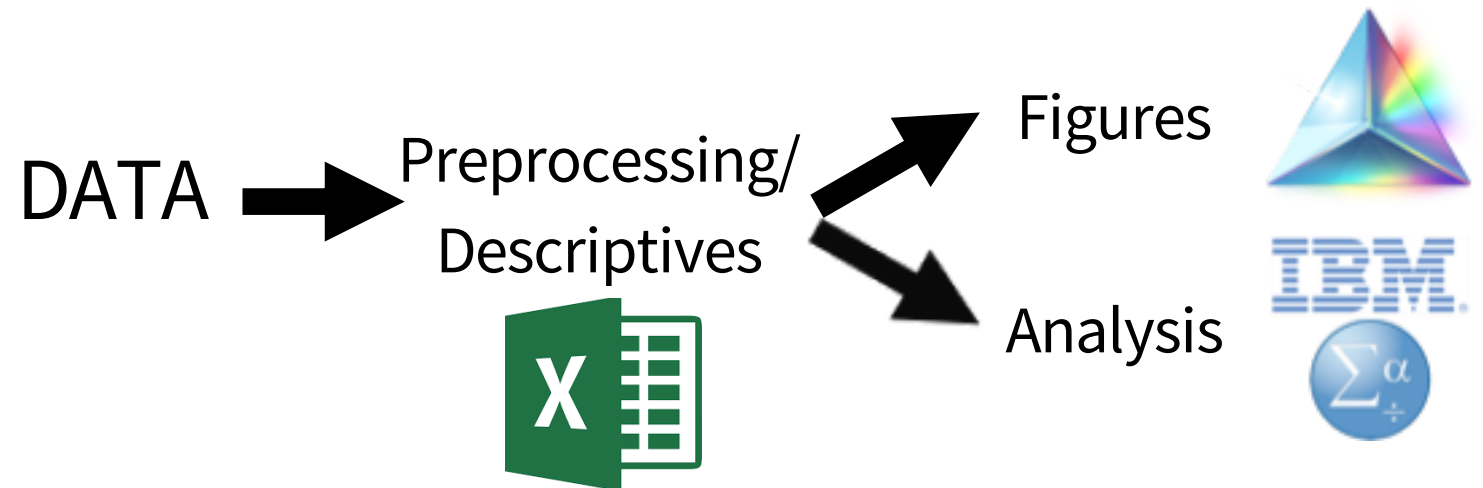

Why I R:

1. I'm lazy

2. I make mistakes

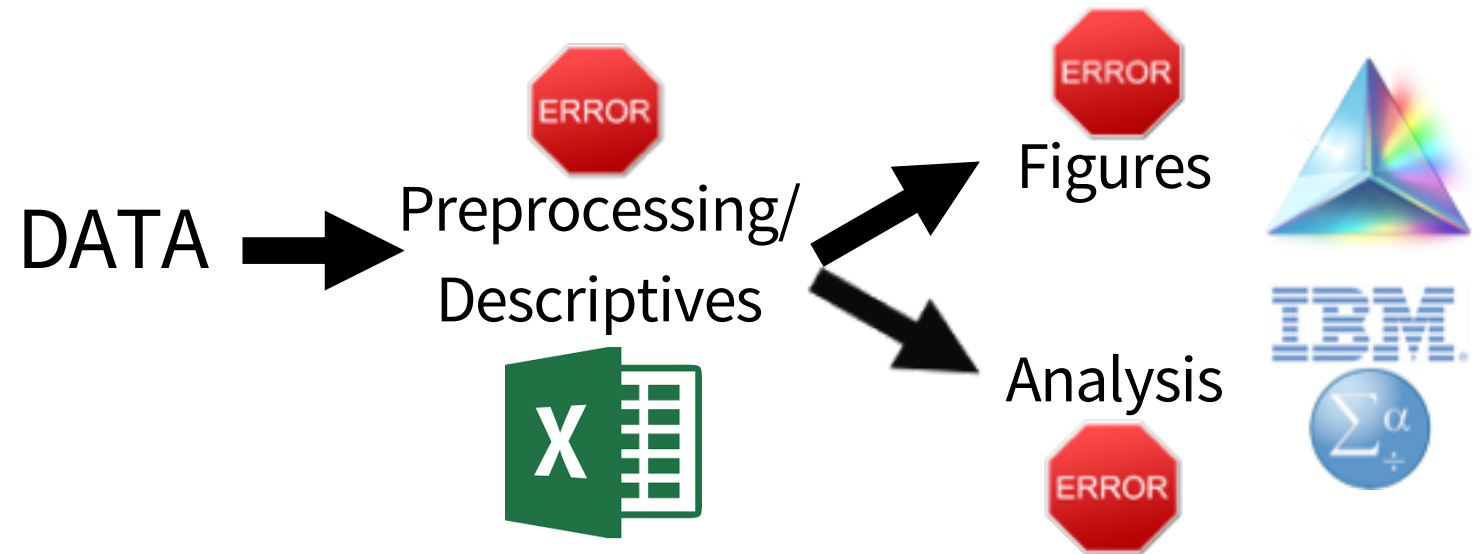

Why I R:

1. I'm lazy

2. I make mistakes

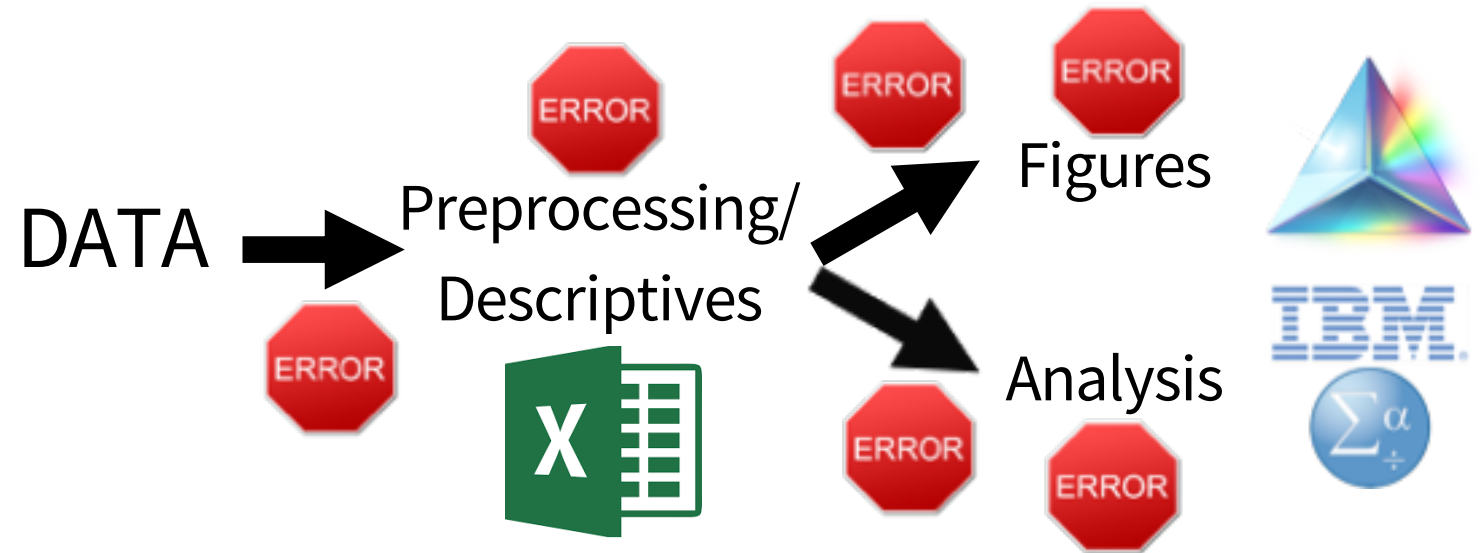

Why I R:

1. I'm lazy

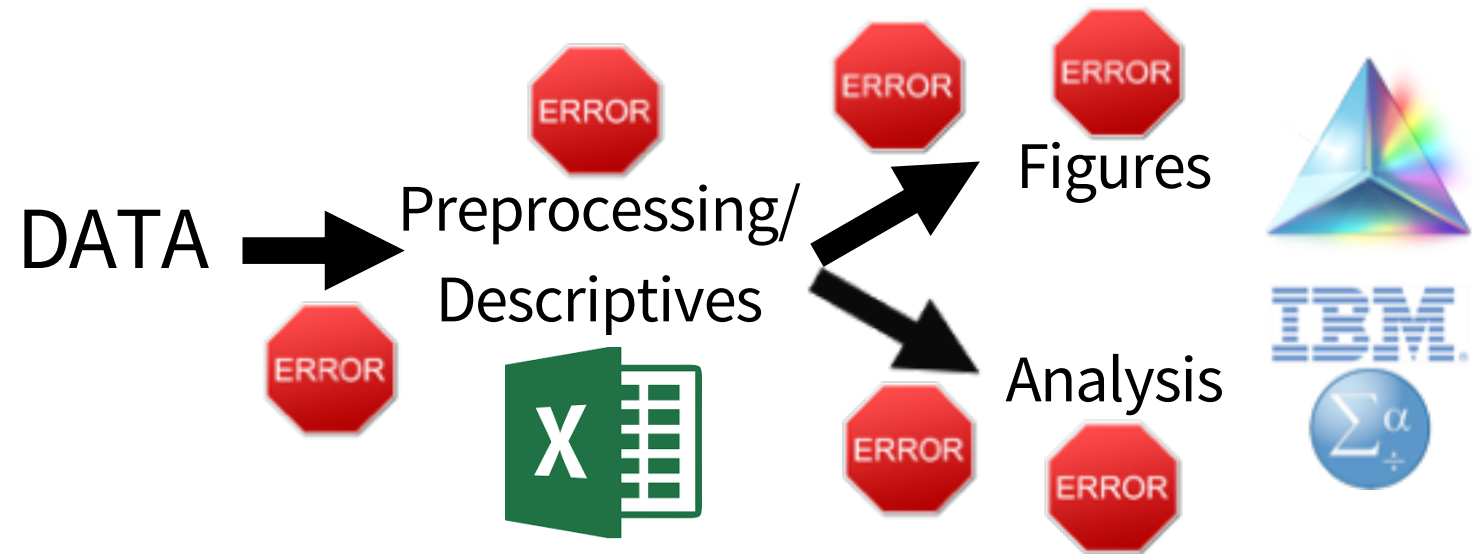

2. I make mistakes

Why I R:

1. I'm lazy

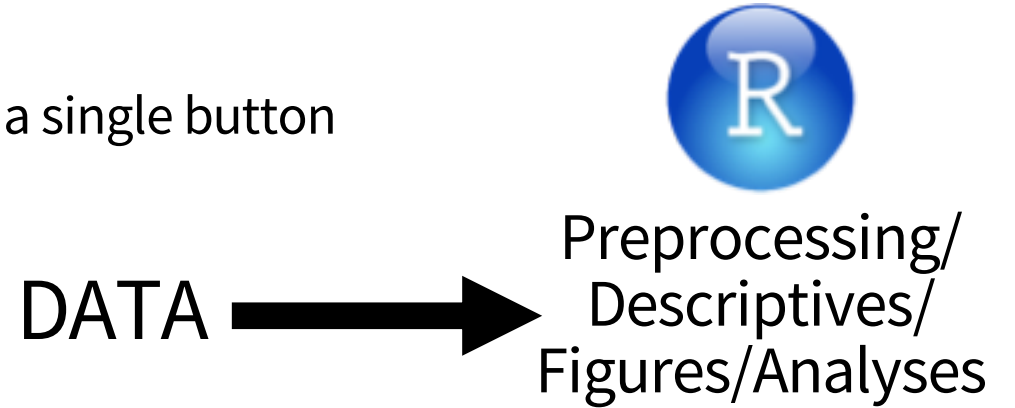

2. I make mistakes

“Are you happy with your current solution?”

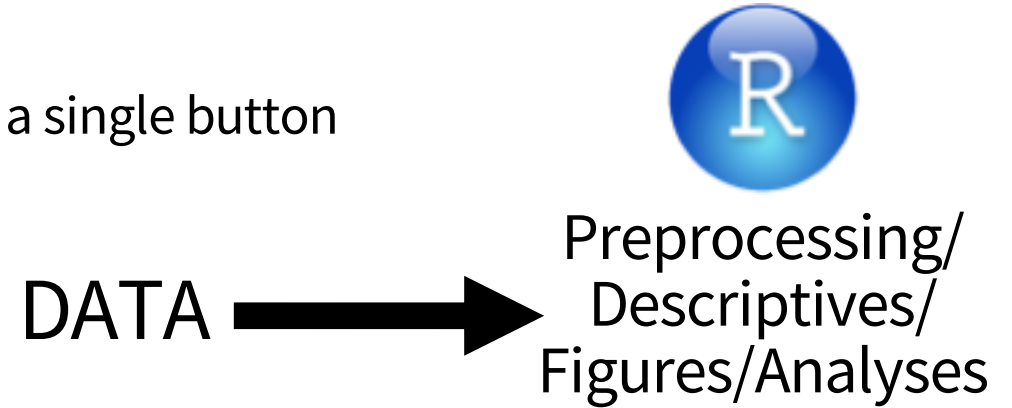

Why I R:

- I'm lazy
 - I can re-run everything from start-finish using a single button
- I make mistakes
 - Still do, but easy to find and fix

Why I R:

- I'm lazy
 - I can re-run everything from start-finish using a single button
- I make mistakes
 - Still do, but easy to find and fix
- Expand my statistical repertoire
- Make my results reproducible
- Improve my programming skills

If you're thinking about learning R

- It's challenging, but nothing you can't handle

If you're thinking about learning R

- It's challenging, but nothing you can't handle
- It is rewarding

If you're thinking about learning R

- It's challenging, but nothing you can't handle
- It is rewarding
- Satisfying Reviewer #3 will be easier

If you're thinking about learning R

- It's challenging, but nothing you can't handle
- It is rewarding
- Satisfying Reviewer #3 will be easier
- You can be more confident in your work

If you're thinking about learning R

- It's challenging, but nothing you can't handle
- It is rewarding
- Satisfying Reviewer #3 will be easier
- You can be more confident in your work
- There are SO many free resources

If you're thinking about learning R

- It's challenging, but nothing you can't handle
- It is rewarding
- Satisfying Reviewer #3 will be easier
- You can be more confident in your work
- There are SO many free resources
- And now, a friendly support network

